Socialist and the I. W. W.

The object and purpose of the anarchistic organization known as the Industrial Workers of the World have never been more clearly and frankly shown than by James P. Thompson, the general organizer for the United States. He says:

"There is but one bargain which the I. W. W. will make with the employing class—complete surrender of all control of industry to the organized workers. That is revolution. I know it is; but revolution is our motto. Just how we will accomplish it depends largely upon circumstances. We do not advocate the use of dynamite or the throwing of bricks. There is bound to be violence some where, some time. A certain amount of bloodshed, a few deaths, are unavoidable incidents to all revolutionary movements. We must take what we want in the quickest, easiest way. The way depends on our strength. Interference by the government with the methods of the Industrial Workers of the World will not be tolerated. We do not recognize the right of the government to interfere with us unless they are so powerful that they can crush us."

The Socialist, assembled at Indianapolis, refused to recognize the I. W. W. organization as representing in any way the ideals of Socialism. A leading German Socialist and labor organizer, recently in this city, has repeatedly taken pains to state in public his repudiation of the doctrines of the I. W. W. and of the street-corner speakers of this organization, who pretend to their hearers that they are preaching the doctrines of Socialism.

It is one of the singular inconsistencies of those Socialist who profess no sort of sympathy with the methods nor the ideals of the I. W. W. that they are making a national issue of the fact that a federal judge in this state interpreting the language of the naturalization laws according to their unmistakable intent and meaning, canceled the naturalization papers of a member of the I. W. W. because he had openly avowed doctrines identical with those set out in the above quotation. Seattle Post-Intelligencer.

Should Be the Last.

The disgraceful scenes now being enacted at Chicago should be sufficient to relegate the old convention plan to the scrap heap. The conventions of 1912 should be the last held in the United States for the nomination of presidential candidates, even if it requires a constitutional amendment, which it probably would.

The preferential primary to be held in all the states on the same day, that would elect the number of delegates that the state is entitled to in the electoral college, would settle the matter, and it is safe to say that no difficulty would be experienced in obtaining the ratification of such an amendment by the necessary two-thirds of the states.

We thought the Aberdeen convention was a bit exciting, but it was not a marker to what Chicago gives promise of. With 150 policemen in the hall, and a hospital ward in the same building with a corps of physicians, Teddy was dead right in saying: "This is a fight worth being in."

The establishment of a night school in Aberdeen for adult foreigners is a step in the right direction, and will prove a wise investment.

Preference Primaries

Not the most earnest advocate of the preferential primary system would probably care to avow that in recent experience it has proved itself a success. We have had in effect a prolonged and heated presidential campaign as a preliminary to the equally prolonged and still more heated one to be opened in July. And it has been costly, though this is a secondary consideration, for if the innovation will, as it is claimed, restore to the people control over their own government, the result would be cheaply bought at almost any price.

But a more serious objection is that against the existing method of stirring the elections in the various states over a period of two or three months, in the event of a close rivalry among candidates for preference the value of the just delegations to be elected would be enormously increased and the temptation to secure the same by improper methods would grow in geometrical proportions as the contest progressed. This is a very serious charge—much more so than the incontrovertible assertion that it is an evil and a nuisance to keep the nation in turmoil for ten or twelve weeks while the electors in the various states successively cast their ballots. Nor is a remedy easily found. To have all the primaries occur on the same day would require a consensus of the laws of forty-eight states, and this would be almost an impossible achievement.

The objection that less than half, and in some cases, less than one-tenth of the voters take the pains to express their preference is less formidable than it seems on first view. Taking Wisconsin and North Dakota for examples, in both of which states nearly a full vote was polled, we may assume that when the electors became habituated to the system they will avail themselves of its privileges everywhere. The preference primary came into practical operation in Wisconsin several years ago, while in most of the states it is a complete novelty. Anyhow, it is a closer approach to popular control of parties to have the nominations made by 50 per cent of the voters than by a corporate guard of self-appointed leaders. That the masses are more easily swayed by vociferous demagogues than caucuses and conventions is an assertion about which it is impossible to disagree. Caucuses and conventions have been stamped by shouting patriots, and corrupt influences can be more easily exerted in secret and in relatively small bodies than in the open and with the whole mass of electors for their objective. As to the criss-cross voting, whereby the candidate of one party may get his name on the tickets of all parties, the laws of few states are as defective as those of Pennsylvania. The primary laws of many states require amendment. Nevertheless, the underlying theory is sound. Philadelphia Record.

Not Always

In a newspaper interview, Chauncey M. Depew declares that "mail and gab" is all that is necessary to win the presidency. Still the rule did not hold in Mr. Depew's case.

Gives Evil Reputation

The abandonment of all efforts to compete with Toronto is not at all creditable to Chehalis county. To be sure, the hunt has been very expensive, but the reputation of being unable to give lawful protection to life and property will also prove expensive. It is such a representation as the county cannot well afford in these days of effort to induce population and capital. If a reward of $25,000 would lead to the arrest of the murderer, Chehalis county could better afford to pay it than to admit its helplessness to the world.

WILL TAKE SPECIAL TRAIN

Grays Harbor Eagles will go to the State Aerie, which meets at Seattle, July 18, 19 and 20, in a special train arrangements for which are being made by the Aberdeen and Hoquiam Aeries. The train will be known as the Grays Harbor special, and besides those from Aberdeen and Hoquiam, will be used by those from Montesano, Elma and Olympia.

LECTURE TOMORROW EVENING

Rev. Marjatt of Seattle will lecture on the "Funny Phases of a Preacher's Life" in the South Aberdeen Methodist church tomorrow evening, at 8 o'clock. A male quartet, consisting of Drs. O. R. Austin, Connelley and H. E. Phillips and A. Austin, will sing on the occasion.

ODD FELLOWS UNVEIL SHAFT

Aberdeen Lodge Erects Noble Monument to Its Departed Brethren Yesterday

About 800 people attended the dedication of the monument erected by Aberdeen Lodge 1, O. O. F., at Fern Hill cemetery yesterday afternoon. Quite a number of Odd Fellows, and their friends came from Elma, Hoquiam and Cosmopolis to assist in the ceremonies, which were very impressive.

The Odd Fellows, Retakabs and Chevaliers met at the hall and marched to the cemetery, where the dedication took place. Rev. J. A. Board of Hoquiam, delivering the address. He was assisted in the ceremonies by Rev. Chas. McDermott.

The tall shaft, which crowns any monument at the present time in the Fern Hill cemetery is 12 feet in height. It is placed on a base 2 feet square, and the shaft itself is 2 feet square. The cutting and designing of the monument and placing in position, was the work of Wm. Riedler of Aberdeen.

This tall gray shaft stands in the center of four cemetery blocks owned by the I. O. O. F. and is a mute witness of the veneration held toward their dead by the Odd Fellows. It has been said that men show their real nature by their veneration of their fellows who have passed before and the Odd Fellows of Aberdeen by their earlier lesson of duty due the dead, have taught this community a lesson.

Fern Hill cemetery was laid out in 1895, when the G. A. R., I. O. O. F., Masons, the A. O. U. W. and the W. O. W. each contributed $500 each toward securing grounds. It was agreed at the time that all money received from sale of lots should be used in beautifying the grounds.

bit at opportune times. Hollis' heavy hitting, using much to bring defeat to Aberdeen. The score:

Centralia . . . 0 2 0 0 0 0 0 2 5

Aberdeen 14, Centralia 2.

Saturday's contest was a slugfest in which the Aberdeen team maulled the jill all over the lot, and this heavy hitting, together with the liberal lot of passes issued by Walter Smith, the Centralia twirler, gave Aberdeen a game by a big score, it being 14 to 2, when the smoke of battle had cleared away.

Don Smith held the visitors down throughout the contest until the seventh inning, when they allowed him to retire in order to save him for yesterday's game. His injured ankle bothered him a little but not sufficient to allow him to pitch a star game for the seven innings he officiated. Aberdeen scored the first run in the first inning, when Reams drew a base on balls and scored on a passed ball. Three more were scored in the second on two bases on balls and Brown's hit. In the fourth four more Cats romped across the rubber, while in the fifth and seventh innings the home lads annexed three scores in each act.

Centralia got its only scores in the ninth inning on Helmecke on two hits and a fielder's choice. The score:

Aberdeen 31, Centralia 4.

The first game of the series, played Friday afternoon on a slippery field, was won by Centralia after a hard fought battle, the final score being 4 to 3. It was a hard game for Aberdeen to lose, as the Cats were entitled to win according to the ethics of the game, but that is not to be considered. Just a slight misplay in the third inning, when Gleason forgot to touch Miller at the plate, resulted in Centralia scoring three runs, which gave them the lead and later the game.

The Aberdeen club has been playing good ball the past week and should have won two games of the series. Rain prevented the club's playing Thursday.

Aberdeen has a clever player in town the new second baseman. He handles himself well on the field.

Hollis, the heavy hitter from Centralia, played havoc with the club the last two games. This lad is some hot liver.

Saturday is Ladies' day and the fair sex are admitted to both grandstand and grounds free of charge.

DEATH OF MRS. SCHULTZ

Aged Lady Passes Away Wednesday Night at St. Joseph's Hospital Following Short Illness.

Mrs. Wilhelmina Schultz died Wednesday night after a short illness at St. Joseph's hospital, aged 70 years. Death was caused primarily by cancer of the stomach, from which she had long been a sufferer to which was added other ill incidents to advance work by H. A. Bahnam, acting for Frank Thibault as esteemed leading knight, George B. Reid, esteemed local knight, A. S. McKean, esteemed securing knight, O. M. Hartwell, secular, Louis M. Roger, secretary and A. A. Scott, director of the orchestra.

The invocation was delivered by Chaplain Arthur E. Davies, and the history of the flag read by Jay D. Carney in excellent voice while the Elks tribute to the flag was applauded by George G. Thompson. The star service was beautiful throughout, music being furnished during the services by Miss Jeanette Scott and the Elks orchestra, as well as a male chorus and male quartet, the latter composed of Harry Phillips, Dr. O. R. Austin, Dr. Tinning and Alan Austin.

Address by Hon. Thos. Vance. The address delivered by Hon. Thomas Vance of Olympia, was a masterly effort that sparkled throughout with patriotism, common sense and good citizenship. He did not worship the flag as a fetish, but as the emblem representing the ideals for which it stands. He was listened to with marked attention and was frequently interrupted by applause.

SUPREME COURT DECISIONS

One Chehalis County Case Affirmed and the Other Reversed by the Higher Tribunal.

OLYMPIA, June 15.—The supreme court upheld the ruling of the Chehalis county superior court in the case of Frank Klain against N. O. Kaufman and Wilson Butner, co-partners defendants, and N. O. Kaufman appellant, an action brought to recover for personal services and for value of certain farm products. Klain was logging foreman and asked for $1,055 for wages not paid, and also for $314.20 for farm goods delivered to the camp. He was awarded $1,759.30 and this judgment is allowed to stand.

On the ground of the introduction of erroneous evidence the supreme court yesterday reversed the Chehalis county superior court, and remanded for a new trial the case of Ed Dolan against the S. E. Slade Lumber company appellant. This action was brought for the recovery of personal damages for injuries sustained when Dolan was at work on a Berlin re-saw. Dolan was awarded $2,000.

WIFE BEATER SENTENCED

R. Miah was convicted in the police court Saturday of wife beating, and was sentenced by Judge Drake to six months in the county jail. Miah is known to the police as a loafer who leaves a wife and two children to rustle a living as best they may, while he bums around town surrounding all the booze he can get, and preaching the doctrine of the Industrial Workers of the World. He went home Thursday in an ill temper and proceeded to beat up his meek little wife, who with her children will be cared for the Associated Charities until they are otherwise provided for.
